Notice to all Persons having Demands on the Government.

PENSIONS, BOUNTY, PRIZE-MONEY, PATENTS. Pay for Vouchers, Scrip, Back Pay, Lost Horses and Spoliation Claims obtained by the undersigned, who will attend to all other business before the Departments at Washington City.

Soldiers becoming disabled or diseased while in the service, are entitled to a Pension. Those who served in any war previous to the 3d of March 1855 are entitled to Bounty Land. Those who served in the Navy during the late war and were legally attached to a vessel of a squadron on duty, although not participating in the taking of prizes, are entitled to Prize Money. In many Indian Treaties provision is made for payment of Spoliation Claims out of Annuities. To collect the large number of such claims now owned in this country—for the settlement of which no similar provision has been made by treaty—demand should be made at once therefor at the proper Department, and if just, recommendation will be made to Congress to pass an act setting apart the amount thereof out of the Annuities.

A Wretched Game to Destroy the Union Party

From the Stockton (Cal.) Independent.

The New York Herald, now acting as the pilot-fish to the Presidential policy, takes the lead of all the opposition against the Congressional ideas on reconstruction. It was the Herald that first suggested a change of Cabinet—substituting such half rebels as Guthrie, of Kentucky, Parsons of Mississippi, and Reverdy Johnson, of Maryland, for such noble patriots as Stanton, Speed and Welles, called to the councils of the Nation by the lamented Lincoln and universally beloved by all the loyal men of the Nation. Yet, notwithstanding the universal love and confidence now manifested by the loyal people of the United States towards these distinguished cabinet officers, there were times during the varying fortunes of the war, when, excited by reverses on the field, many good Union men, in the haste of passion, threw all the responsibility of failure upon the Secretary of War or Navy; and there were not wanting many Generals like McClellan ready and anxious to thrust all their own incapacities upon the War Department, nor very many Copperhead and soft-shell Union papers quite willing to aid in the dirty and infamous work of defamation. But "time sets all things even." What the discriminating public now sees and acknowledges, is that the Lincoln Cabinet was the hardest worked and the most conscientious Cabinet noted in history, and that of the thousand times their conduct seemed to be wrong, adjudged in the heat of passion by an unreflecting public, at least nine hundred times they have been proven right by the stern logic of events. To this opinion we believe the great majority of the loyal people of the United States have now come, and they are fully sustained by the observations of intelligent foreigners and the criticisms of the English, French and German press.

But this final judgment does not suit the men who are pushing themselves forward as the President's peculiar friends in his differences of opinion with the Thirty-ninth Congress. They wish to revive the buried lies and passions and prejudices of the past, and if possible, to cover all those who have best and most faithfully served the Union cause with infamy—to make them a stench in the nostrils of the people. The Herald, true to its dastardly instincts, is engaged in a fierce war upon Secretary Stanton, who, excepting Carnot, the republican War Minister of France in the first revolution, has never had his equal. The plan of the Herald is to hold an unsound President by destroying a thoroughly sound and loyal Cabinet. Stanton, as the head and front of the enemies of rebellion and the war, to whose genius, industry and patriotism the rebels are in a great measure indebted for their overthrow, comes in for the Herald's first and fiercest abuse. He is denounced as "a revolutionist of the worst type," likened unto Robespierre, Marat and Danton, and accused of being at the head of the opposition to the Presidential policy of reconstruction. But the chief point on which the Herald and the rest of the Presidential clan rely for the ruin of Secretary Stanton is, the getting up of a quarrel between him and General Grant. We once heard a story wherein the devil was represented as the conductor of a mortal feud between the members of the same religious congregation, in order that he might the more easily destroy Christianity, and the course of the old Mephisto is just of the Herald in the matter under discussion is in all respects like that of his satanic majesty. The devil is said to be the father of lies, but as with the human race the son often excels the sire in speed, so we think the Herald editor can discount the devil at lying. In an article printed in that paper a month ago on the Mexican question, we counted and marked fifteen glaring, palpable lies, though it was but a column in length. In an article in the same paper of January 19th, and another of the day preceding, Stanton is misrepresented as hated by and hating Grant, and as guilty of such crime and imbecility as to demand his dismissal from the Cabinet. We quote from the Herald of the 19th January:

"Mr. Stanton is now at the head of this clamor. He, a member of that council whose only duty and province is to second the President and to assist the National Executive in the discharge of his duties, is the President's most violent opponent on this great question of the time. His opposition is just now particularly shown in animosity to Gen. Grant, whose offence is that he is carrying out the President's reconstruction policy too effectually for the radicals. We know very well what Mr. Stanton will do in his efforts to ruin a general. The country has felt it in the thousands of soldiers uselessly slain, in squandered millions of money, in a war prolonged for four years that might have been ended in two. All that was the result of Secretary Stanton's quarrels with generals. His endeavors to destroy General McClellan cost the country its first magnificent army, and nullified the campaign by which Richmond could have been taken in 1862, thereby it let the enemy into Maryland, and built the feeble confederacy up into a great power, only to be put down by the sacrifice of a dozen armies and the accumulation of our great debt. A quarter of a million wasted lives and the larger part of the national debt are the monuments of Mr. Stanton's hatred to one general; and now we hear that this hatred becomes particularly active against another.

"Stanton's dislike to Grant is not new. It was heard of while Grant was still in the West; and then Stanton's special agent, Dana, went with Grant's army, ostensibly an assistant Secretary of War—in fact, a spy, commissioned purely and simply to watch Grant. Grant could stand the watching, and went on heedless of it, pounding away at the enemy and establishing that grand name with the people which puts him in reality out of the reach of such persons. Still the attempts against him are revived, because he is in the way; because with such an honest, simple-minded patriot at its head the army cannot be used as a piece of radical machinery to keep the South in its present condition."

Now, the truth is that Stanton and Grant are now, and have been, the very best of friends. They have, as is usual with strong minded, honest men, perfect confidence in each other. Stanton has testified a hundred times to the great generalship of Grant, and in his evidence before the Committee on the Conduct of the War, Grant fully reciprocated Stanton's compliments. When asked what he thought of the manner in which the Secretary of War conducted the affairs of his department, the Lieutenant General replied that in his opinion the affairs of the War Department could not have been better conducted, and that there had never been the slightest misunderstanding between Stanton and himself. The testimony of General Meade was substantially the same, and we will venture the opinion in advance, though we have not read the published evidence, that Sheridan, Sherman, Rosecrans, and all the rest of the Generals examined before that committee, have made similar answers to the same questions. It is only the fool or the scoundrel who at this day impugns the motives of the Secretary of War or ridicules his ability. The real purpose of the Herald and its followers is, not so much to injure the Secretary of War as the Congressional majority and the Union party.

REBEL CANDOR.—An old planter at Fayetteville, North Carolina, expressing the real feeling of a majority of the reconstructed rebels, thus frankly writes to a Northern friend, and we think the most rabid radical must admire his candor:

I'm just as loyal as anybody, and I'm going to be a good citizen, but I believe we've had [illegible] Government here this last four years. There's a good many trying to make out that they've always been sound Union men, when we were all rebels together. I'm in favor of acknowledging we're whipped and asking forgiveness, and then if the United States won't take us back, why it's not our fault. We have got to eat dirt anyhow, as I once says, but blamed if I think much of a man that pretends to like it. I never could keep up with the politicians though.

DeBow, once the ablest writer in the interest of the rebellion, says: "A nation which has proven itself capable of passing through such a crisis—involving the movement of armies and navies scarcely inferior to those which followed in the wake of the great Napoleon and the expenditure of money to which the powerful States of Europe have been a stranger, and of which they can scarcely realize the facts, maintaining through it all its currency and credit unimpaired is not likely to go down in any future contingency."

A writer in the Walla Walla Statesman, as an argument in favor of annexation to Oregon, says: "In Oregon, they have frequent Courts, administered by competent judges—here we have not." A deserved compliment to our judiciary.

CONFEDERATE X ROADS (which is in the State of Kentucky,) Jan. 6, 1866.

I sees a lite. Dimocrisy is not that dead karkis its enemies hoped for and its friends feared. My noomerous friends here insisted that ez I was growin into the sear and yaller leaf, I should abandon Dimocrisy, and flote with the current. I cant. Ez troo ez the needle to the pole, so am I to Dimocrisy. Young women flock to marrying, middle aged ones to borning, and old ones to buryin, which shows conclosively to the most limited intellect what the mind of each class runs upon. So it is with me. To me Dimocrisy is wife, mother and child.

I hev diskivered many things since I hev been in Kentucky—things wich elevated my depressed heart ez yeast does dough, which filled my shrunken sole as wind does a bladder.

The people uv Kentucky were all loyal. Doorin the horrible fratrisidle war which hez rent the proud temple of liberty in2 twain, they preserved a strict new-trality. I hed a conversation with one old patriarch who assured me he hed never taken sides.

Upon his honor, he assured me that after battle he rifled the corpses uv both armies impartially. "Cood any boddy be more nootraller than that?" he asked. "My sons," said he, "wuz in the Confedrite army. This fact would hev turned the affections of a week minded man in that direction, but when I thot uv the boys I allus thot also uv that gullorious star spangled banner under which I had whipped my niggers an [illegible] their children, under whose shadder I had manservants, and maidservants, and house maidservants born unto me. That banner had been my shield. Ef my niggers ran off, who so prompt in their pursuit as the Democratic marshals, which allus returned 'em to me if it was possible. The institushun was guaranteed to me by solemn compromise which we could hev ez often as we desired. Compromises wuz our best holt. Whenever we wanted anything all we had to do wuz to ask for it. The Ablishnists would object—the Democrisy wood draw up a compromise which involved, ez a rool, twice or three times what was asked, and pass it to save the Union. Sich a Union was worth havin', and opposed all efforts to dissolve it. Hed the South succeeded I should hev gone with them, for Kentucky alone—the only slave State in the North—wood hev been helpless. Scaldin tears hev I shed when contemplatin the horrors uv war, but I cood do nothing to avert it. Kentucky was loyal but nootral."

I find down here that the loyal citizens uv Kentucky who hev returned from the Confederate service are not at all discouraged, on the contrary they are hopeful. Sed one to me (I believe he was a Kernal under Gen. Forrest—indeed, I think he told me he participated in the glorious victory at Fort Piller)

"Why art thou cast down? Things is working egsactly to our hand."

In a moornful tone I retorted that I failed to perseve it.

"I kin," says he. "Lookye, my venerable friend, is the Northern Democrisy still troo?"

"They is," I replied, "wat few remains. But alas! war, crooel war, hes decimated our ranks five times."

"How so?" ses he, "none of your kind uv Dimocrats jined in this unholy crusade and fell afore our deth dealing swords, did they?"

"Not any," ses I, "but Kanady and Montana took 'em, afore each draft. That wuz why they wuz so badly beat at the elecktions. For one week-kneed Abolitionist we scared into our ranks we lost two by emigration, and unfortunately one half that emigrated starved to deth, and t'other half is distributed in the various States prisons in them lands of refuge."

"Still," ses he, "it matters not. You hev [illegible] tricks you kin carry in most of the States. The Five Points deestrick in New York is ours. New Jersey will go back to her allegiance. The gold States, where so many of our frends fled, will send up Democrats to Congress. Ohio hez [illegible] to us, Pensilvany hez several and the most of the Northern States will send one or two, and them from the North kin be depended on to go any measure we say. Then," and he slapped me on the back hilariously, "the nigger is free!"

"Well?" ses I, not seein what cause for hilarity there wuz.

"Well," ses he, "them niggers is not now other persons! We allus counted five uv 'em for three, in making up the Congressmen we wuz entitled to; now they count as white men, which increases our delegations to such an extent that if you northern men do half your dooty, we'll have a majority in Congress. Then, good Lord! the pleasant crack uv the whip shall again be heard on the plains uv the sunny South. The niggers won't be re-enslaved, but our Legislatures will speedily reduce 'em to their normal condition. We shall observe the Constitutional Amendment strictly and in good faith. The Affrikin shel be free, but the good of society demands that he shel be under proper guardianship. He won't be allowed to change his location, and the laws of the States will define his dooties, and give us the power of 'enforcin' 'em. He won't be allowed to bear arms, so he can't resist. Ez he can't leave a plantation, he will hev to submit quietly to such rools as the high minded planter makes for him, or be shot on the spot, or turned out to die uv starvation, accordin' to circumstances. Ef the planter is a unregenerated child of damnation, he will shoot him—ef he is a saint who hez a Southern hope of a blessed immortality beyond the grave, he'll restrane his anger and turn him out to die uv hunger, unless he repents and comes back humble. Then, they being free and responsible for themselves, we ain't obleeged to take care of the sick, the aged and the infirm, so it will be really better than it wuz before. I see a gellorious future afore us. Thro the thick clouds of gloom the bright sun of hope clearly breaks. Say to the Northern Dimocrisy be uv good cheer. Agin they shel lick our hands—agin they shal eat the crumbs that fall from the national table.

"Thank God for the Northern Dimocrisy, with the other blessins He has given the South! With niggers to do our manual labor for nothin, with Northern Dimocrats to do our votin at almost the same price, we are trooly a favored people. Bless the Lord for the nigger and the Dimkrat, which is both useful to us, each in his speer."

I drew encouragement from his remarks. The deep vane of pious thankfulness which run through his discourse was natural to him. He is trooly a pious man, and wuz just back from the meetin uv the Synod uv one uv the Southern churches, which still persists in quotin Onesimus and Hagar. I feel encouraged. O, Dimmicrats of the North, let us

"Our vigger renew
And our journey pursue,"

And I feel shoor that success will at last crown our efforts.

PETROLEUM V. NASBY.

John Ferguson, of Charleston S. C., the former owner of the steamer Planter, which the brave slave, Robert Small, ran out of the harbor of Charleston during the war, asks its restoration of our Government. As the vessel was employed in the rebel service before Small delivered it up to our blockading squadron, and as it has since been repaired by the Government at a cost of $10,000, it seems quite improbable that Mr. Ferguson will be successful in his request.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE

TUESDAY MORNING, MARCH 6, 1866.

UNION STATE CONVENTION.

The voters of the several counties of Oregon who have been and are in favor of maintaining the supremacy of the Union, the Constitution and the laws of the United States, against all opposition are respectfully invited to hold Conventions according to the usual custom for the election of Delegates to a Union State Convention to be held at Corvallis on the 29th day of March 1866, for the purpose of nominating candidates for Governor, Member of Cong[illegible], Secretary of State, State Treasurer and State Printer. We [illegible] recommend the holding of County Conventions throughout the State on Saturday, the 17th day of March, 1866, at which time Delegates to the State Convention can be selected. It is also recommended that the precinct meetings be held on [illegible] day, the 10th day of March. Delegates to the State Convention from each Judicial District, assembled at the time of holding said Convention, will nominate candidates for Judge and Prosecuting Attorney, where vacancies exist.

The several counties are entitled to send Delegates to the State Convention as follows:

Baker	4	Lane	7
Benton	4	Linn	10
Clackamas	7	Marion	14
Clatsop	2	Multnomah	14
Coos	1	Polk	6
Curry	1	Tillamook	1

Reconstruction on Fixed Principles.

Congress has a true perception of the situation. The action of the loyal members of both Houses shows that they properly understand the state of the country and know the course to take to restore the revolted States on safe and just principles to their constitutional relations with the Government. Congress has no chimerical theory of reconstruction which it resolves to carry out at the hazard of the national safety. It goes straight at the question before it, acting and resolved to act according to the exigencies and requirements of the case. The reconstruction policy which the legislative branch of the Government aims at rests on sound practical principles, and is dictated by a wise regard for the present and future. The nominal restoration of the Union could be [illegible] on such conditions as the ringleaders of the rebellion have chosen to demand; but Congress is decidedly of opinion that if the people of the insurgent States want to recover the rights they have forfeited, they must yield to the Government instead of presumptuously asking the Government to yield to them. If they wish to be represented in Congress they must send men who are loyal and who have not labored with brain and brawn to overthrow the Government. It is no fault of Congress that those States are now unrepresented. The fault is their own, in that they have not sent men to Washington who are pure from the taint of treason and who can take an oath that they had no connection with the rebellion.

It is [illegible] that anybody should be so inconsiderate as to argue that the legislative branch of the Government has no right to deal with the grave subjects connected with the final restoration of the Union. Yet many of those who take this position are the very persons who for years have [illegible] Executive usurpation in the loudest terms. President Lincoln was subjected to a storm of the most violent and abusive censure because he did not wait for the action of Congress in relation to [illegible] of great national importance, but when President Johnson takes it upon himself to do the whole work of restoring the Union and to unite in his own person all the prerogatives of the three branches of the Government, these same [illegible] fawn about and applaud his action. As [illegible] as their conduct is, there is the most [illegible] in the motives by which it is prompted. In the first case the [illegible] was to gain time for the rebels and [illegible] them to do their work, in the present case the object is to do them the service of [illegible] them from the consequences of their crimes.

It is [illegible] that the House will [illegible] from Tennessee and probably two or three other Southern [illegible]. This [illegible] to admit into Congress such of [illegible] that they are loyal and have been so [illegible]. The [illegible] will be highly gratified to hear of this action by Congress. We want Southern [illegible] admitted when those States send up loyal men. There is no class of men in the Union [illegible] who do not [illegible] the removal of all [illegible] from the States lately in revolt, just as soon as it can be safely done. There is no one but who would rejoice to see them send truly loyal men to Congress. The whole country would hail with delight such action on the part of the South. Both Houses of Congress would throw wide their doors and freely and gladly give them seats within their halls. But they will not admit those of the Southern delegations who have been [illegible] in rebellion. [illegible] now waiting at Washington will not get seats in the present Congress. Nor will their [illegible] be admitted unless they are a different class of men from those now there. When the present Congress expires, the loyal North will elect another equally as resolute [illegible]. If this be made the issue, we can beat the Copperheads and the [illegible] of treason forever upon it. The Union party will oppose the repeal of the "test oath" and the admission of rebels into Congress. "To this point we stand, let come what come may."

This action of Congress simplifies the whole [illegible]. The position which the loyal majority has taken is wholly unobjectionable. It accords with the lately expressed views of the President [illegible], and will [illegible] the support of the whole Union party. The States lately in revolt can be restored to their relations with the Government the moment they will to have it so. All [illegible] their own conduct. [illegible] patriotic and [illegible] the Union party will [illegible] their Representatives and Senators therein [illegible] in his heart to see the party [illegible].

"Reverend Principles" vs. Filthy Lucre. The Albany Journal, last week charged Jimmy O'Meara with having sold out the regular Confederates of Oregon for sundry twenties, in the current coin of this "tyrannical, abolition Government," said funds being pressed upon his favorable consideration by that pink of honesty, J. C. Avery, of Corvallis. O'Meara is to dry up on President Johnson, or at least to roar very softly, till it can be ascertained definitely whether President Johnson is going to somersault himself out of the Union party into the embraces of those [illegible] who at one time hunted him out of Tennessee. Avery thinks he will—O'Meara doubts. Avery replies that while the event hangs in question, the Confederate Democrats of Oregon can't be depended on to go the whole Confederate programme. O'Meara is disposed to trust them for that and affects to despise such shilly-shallying. But then Avery is very persuasive and so are his U. S. twenties. O'Meara begins to melt down and to see it somewhat in this new light. Democratic principles are eternal—so O'Meara says, U. S. gold is scarce—so O'Meara has oft times found it; and this view of the case, and the promise that if Johnson fails to make the said somersault, Avery will consent to let him loose again, decides O'Meara that Democratic "landmarks" and Democratic principles are for the present hardly as valuable as Abolition lucre. The State Journal says the twenties are working, as may be seen by the softly roaring tone of the Confederate Democrat for the last week or two.

The Mountaineer is exercised in relation to a [illegible] that certain parties are "engineering" for the [illegible] of Fort Dalles.

[DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

DATES TO MARCH 3.

The Eight-Hour Movement—Jeff. Davis Surprised Again—General News.

New York, March 1.—A large and enthusiastic meeting of mechanics held last evening resolved to support the eight hour movement as made by the house painters.

The Herald's Fortress Monroe correspondent states that Jeff. Davis pretended to be surprised that the national salute which was fired on February 22d, should include no guns for each of the lately rebellious States.

Guadaloupe dates of January 1st state eleven hundred deaths from cholera. Later advices to January 14th say [illegible] and [illegible] the re-appearance in Dominica. Cholera was feared at Havana.

Vera Cruz advices to February 17th give a list of Imperial successes, principally in Michoacan, where 4000 of Juarist's troops were defeated with great loss and dispersed.

The Cabinet will not be Disrupted.

New York, March 2.—The Times Washington special dispatch says: The President is fully sustained by his Cabinet, and there will be no disruption.

Official Decapitation—The President shows his "Pluck"—Mrs. Lincoln.

Washington, March 1.—Mrs. Jane G. Swisshelm was dismissed from a clerkship in the Quartermaster General's office on Monday, for using language disrespectful to the President, in a little weekly paper edited by her.

At the request of Mrs. Lincoln the Treasurer of the United States has invested the amount of $22,000 voted by Congress, in 5-20 bonds.

Important Discussion in the House.

Chicago, March 1.—The Tribune's Washington dispatch says: The principal feature of the proceedings of Congress yesterday was the discussion of Bingham's Constitutional Amendment, in the House. Mr. Davis, of New York, a moderate Republican, spoke for an hour and a half against it, taking in some sense the ground occupied by the President, viz: That such important questions, affecting the interests of the whole nation, ought not to be legislated upon while eleven States were unrepresented. He urged the necessity of [illegible] between the Legislative and Executive branches of the Government, and announced himself an admirer of the President and his general line of policy.

Mr. Woodbridge, of Vermont followed in a very brief speech, in favor of the proposition, and spoke with force and clearness.

Mr. Bingham, of Ohio, closed the debate, answering the objection urged against the amendment, saying it was nothing more or less than a proposition to give Congress power to enforce the guarantee of the bill of rights. He [illegible], and demanded that the issues of the hour be met in a manly and resolute spirit. One brave deed that would commend itself to the natural instincts of the people would be worth fifty makeshifts.

After the close of the debate there followed one of those little episodes for which the House has of late been so remarkable. It grew out of a point of order made by Hale, of New York, and for twenty minutes there was some sharp sparring, in which about a dozen members took part. Even so good a parliamentarian as Gen. Banks was overruled, and Hale, one of the new members, carried the day and won the laurels. Quite a considerable opposition has been held for two or three days on this amendment, and as a result of which it became apparent that it could not be carried by the requisite two-thirds vote at present. Many Republicans are opposed to it on principle, and many think it expedient not to make any more amendments until the Senate has acted on one or both of [illegible] which have already been sent to it. Perhaps it may also be added, there is a growing feeling that amendments may be overdone. At all events it was certain that this amendment could not pass the House at present and R. Conkling, of New York, therefore moved to put it over till Tuesday, April 2d. Before a vote could be taken on this motion, Eldridge, of Wisconsin, moved to lay the whole matter on the table indefinitely, but the motion was defeated by 41 to 110. The question was taken on Conkling's motion, which was carried by 112 to 37.

Minnesota Sustains Congress.

Chicago, March 1.—The Minnesota Legislature adopted a resolution by a strict party vote, that it is to Congress that the people look for a true reconstruction policy, and we rely upon its firmness and wisdom in the present exigency of public affairs. Resolutions sustaining the President were tabled by a party vote. Both branches of the Legislature adjourned to day.

Wisconsin Pronounces against the President's Policy.

Madison, March 1.—The Wisconsin Legislature adopted the following:

Resolved, That whereas, we have witnessed with gratitude the noble and devoted patriotism manifested by President Johnson during the dark days of the rebellion, we should be guilty of [illegible] in vetoing the Freedmen's Bureau bill in its general [illegible] spirit, has [illegible] among his true friends [illegible], and has been hailed with [illegible] by [illegible] him who [illegible] with [illegible] indifferent when [illegible] the life of the Republic.

Resolved, That we most cordially endorse and approve the action of Senators and Representatives in Congress who have [illegible] asserted the right of Congress to [illegible] when and in what manner it will admit [illegible] from the States disorganized by the rebellion, and earnestly requests them to firmly resist the [illegible] of Representatives from such States until peace is fully restored, and until the people of such State shall positively guarantee equal and exact justice to all men [illegible].

[illegible] of Important [illegible].

Washington, March 3.—The Congressional Committee [illegible] among the people have made [illegible] a most thorough [illegible] will put the [illegible] wholly and fairly before the country. It is [illegible] that this Committee is bent upon sending only the most radical speeches, but the character of the [illegible] is a sufficient guaranty of the [illegible].

[illegible] for the Pacific Coast.

[illegible], March 2.—The Miscellaneous Appropriation bill, as it passed the House, includes the following [illegible]: For the [illegible] of public lands in California, $30,000; Oregon and Washington, $20,000 each; Nebraska, $30,000; [illegible] $10,000.

[illegible]

[illegible], March 2.—W. T. Cogswell, of Ohio, has been appointed [illegible]. The [illegible] bill authorizing the Secretary of the Navy to [illegible] to assist the [illegible].

Washington, [illegible], late private Secretary to the President, died here yesterday.

Since the [illegible] report of the Secretary of the Treasury, made last October, the public debt has been reduced twenty-nine millions of dollars. All [illegible] have been paid, and the available funds in coin and currency have increased $1,750,000. The reduction of the debt is in part, obligations and legal tender notes. The Secretary of the Treasury is about [illegible] orders to Treasury agents in the South, to call in the sub-agents and close their business, which has been a losing one to the Government, though profitable to all employed.

The Secretary of the Treasury issued the following circular to Custom-house officers, relative to the Chilean and Peruvian [illegible]:

Treasury Department, March 21, 1866.—It has been officially announced to the Government, that hostilities between Spain and Peru have been resumed, and as it is possible that during the continuation of such hostilities [illegible] will be made to bring into United States ports [illegible] taken by one party from the other, the custom officers will use all diligence to prevent the entrance of such vessels except in distress, when the provisions of the act of 1799 must be enforced, and collectors will then promptly notify the Department of the fact of such arrival and the [illegible] attending the same.

Protest against Fenian Immunity.

New York, March 3.—The Commercial's Washington special says: The English Minister has protested against immunity enjoyed by Fenians, but the Government does not regard the evidence sufficient to warrant interference.

Order in Relation to Promotions in the Regular Army.

The following order has been issued:

Headquarters of the Army, Adjutant General's Office, Washington, March 1st, 1866.—Special Order No. 9. A board of officers will assemble at St. Louis, Mo., March 4th, 1866, or as soon thereafter as practicable, to make recommendations for Brevet promotions from any Brevet or actual rank, for which the appointment is already confirmed, to the grades of Brigadier and Major-Generals in the regular army. The Board will make its recommendations either from the list of appointments to those grades already made but not confirmed, or from the officers not appointed. The recommendations will be of two different classes: First, for gallant and meritorious services, and second, for faithful services. The recommendations of the first class will only be for the specific action and campaigns in which the officer recommended had been present, and when more than one Brevet is recommended, the special action or campaign should be stated, for which every Brevet is recommended. The Adjutant General will at once forward to senior officers of the Board the recommendations for Brevet and other information necessary for the action of the Board in the case of the [illegible] nominated or recommended for Brevet promotion. By order of General Grant.

(Signed) E. D. TOWNSEND.

Tennessee Members will be Admitted.

The Post's Washington special dispatch says: The reconstruction committee has agreed to the proposition to admit the delegation from Tennessee to seats in Congress. Two or three other representatives will be presented by the members of the committee, the majority reporting against the resolution in favor of their admission. The Tennessee members will probably obtain their seats soon.

The ways and means committee is [illegible] to lay [illegible] rapidly forming a new tax bill. The protectionists are here in great force to press their claims upon Congress.

Southern Members not to be admitted until Congress declares their States restored to the Union.

Washington, March 3.—The Senate remained in session until a late hour last night, and finally passed the House resolution not to admit the Senators and Representatives from lately rebellious States till Congress declared such State restored to the Union; ayes 29, noes 18. The following were the yeas: Anthony, Brown, Clark, Chandler, Conness, Cragin, Cresswell, Fessenden, Foster, Grimes, Harris, Henderson, Howe, Kirkwood, Lane of Indiana, Lane of Kansas, Morrill, Nye, Pomeroy, Poland, Ramsey, Sherman, Sprague, Sumner, Trumbull, Williams, Wade, Wilson and Yates—29. Noes: Buckalew, Cowan, Davis, Dixon, Doolittle, Guthrie, Hendricks, Johnson, McDougall, Morgan, Nesmith, Norton, Riddle, Saulsbury, Stewart, Stockton, VanWinkle, Willey—18. Absent, Foote, Howard and Wright.

The above division was the same as on the question of passing the Freedmen's Bill over the veto, with the exception of the absence of Howard, who would have voted aye. The result shows how compact both majority and minority are.

The Cause of Delay Explained.

Mr. Fessenden in the course of his remarks took occasion to reply to the charge that the reconstruction committee was needlessly delaying, and as chairman of that committee his declarations are official. He said the members of the committee were designated December 21st. Congress then adjourned to January 5. Immediately after the reassembling, a resolution passed both houses, calling on the President for information about the provisional governments, and the process of reorganization under his plan, but no response of any kind had been made. After having waited a respectful time, meanwhile the two houses having referred to it, the committee proceeded to get this information by a tedious process, dividing the work [illegible] sub-committees. These have held daily sessions of two hours each and all day on Saturdays. He did not [illegible] of the President's action, but it was just that the country should know the chief cause of delay.

Report against Claim for Damages.

Washington, March 3.—The House Committee on Claims have reported against paying damage inflicted during Early's raid against Washington in the summer of 1864, when it will be remembered the Blairs' house was burned, etc. The claim amounted to $145,000. It had been scrutinized by military commissioners and the validity established by the Court of Claims.

Protection to be afforded to Emigrants on the Plains.

St. Louis, March 2.—Pope has issued orders detailing a guard for safety of travelers and trains crossing the Plains. Forts Ridgeley and Abercrombie are designated as posts from which all trains for the [illegible] upper Missouri, Yellowstone, Black Hills and Powder River regions. Fort Kearney is the rendezvous for trains to Denver; Fort Laramie [illegible]; Fort Riley for trains to New Mexico and Colorado by Smoky Hill or the Arkansas River route. At these posts all trains will be organized and equipped for defense and no trains of less than twenty two wagons and thirty armed men under a properly appointed captain will be allowed to pass. The same arrangements will be required of return trains. The commanders of all military posts are required to inspect all trains and compel compliance with these orders. Military escorts will be furnished where necessary and in case of attack prompt assistance will be given. Travelers will not be permitted to cross the Plains except in accordance with this plan.

Fenian Affairs.

New York, March 3.—The Express says: It is estimated at the Fenian headquarters to-day that nearly all the million of men are ready to move for the liberation of Ireland upon receiving orders to march. Several thousand are said to have joined since that day. The same paper has a report on good authority that negotiations are now in progress at Washington to obtain from the United States Government their recognition as a power. Sir Frederick Bruce has, it is stated, protested against any such application being received in departments of the U. S. Government. The central council have issued orders to the brotherhood to act in strict accordance with the United States neutrality laws. The meeting at Jones' Woods to-morrow is expected to be very large. Eight stands for speakers are to be erected in the grounds. Gen. Naglee has resigned as Centre on account of professional duties.

Stocks and Money Market.

New York, March 3.—The Evening Commercial says the money market remains quiet. The miscellaneous list generally weak. Government securities are still strong and in good demand. There are rather more applications for discounts. The dry goods auctions are supplying a good amount of paper, which is taken at 10 per cent. The prospect is that the supply of this class of paper will largely exceed anything experienced since 1860. Gold continues weak, owing to the large sales of gold bought from the Government. The current demand and price this morning touched 135⅝. The shipment of specie to day is very light $74,000, that of the week amounting to $35,452.

Scheme for Bridging Broadway, N. Y.

New York, March 3.—The Committee of the Board of Aldermen, on the bridging of Broadway at crowded points, met this p.m. Several plans were presented. The estimated cost of the bridges of iron, were stated to be from ten to fifteen thousand dollars each.

Maximilian offers Bounties to sailing Vessels under the Mexican Flag.

New York, March 3.—Maximilian has issued a decree granting bounties to all vessels sailing under the Mexican flag, of eight dollars per ton to those built in Mexico; four dollars per ton to those nationalized by Mexican law making voyages beyond America, and two dollars per ton to those making voyages to the United States, West Indies, South America and Central America.

California News—Robbery by Soldiers.

San Francisco, March 5.—Jas. Quinn, a factory man at [illegible], was attacked by a party of soldiers on the corner of Dupont and Broadway streets, about daylight yesterday morning, and stripped of nearly all his clothing. Officer Dana, who lives in the neighborhood hearing his cries for help, got out of bed and ran to his assistance, succeeding in capturing one M. A. Barnes. After his arrest, he volunteered to show his confederates, provided he could go to the Presidio and point them out; so officers Rose and Dana took him to the barracks, when he designated M. Evans and Wm. Warren as the guilty ones. They were all brought into town and the charge of highway robbery entered against them. They belong to the First Cavalry.

Mechanics' Institute Election.

The annual election of officers of the Mechanics' Institute takes place to-day. The polls opened at 12 m., and will close at 9 p.m. There is a sharp contest between the supporters of the regular ticket, headed by H. J. Booth, and the opposition ticket, headed by Chas. M. Plum, and the issue is doubtful.

Incorporation.

The certificate of the incorporation of Tiger Engine has been filed in the County Court. Trustees, M. G. Searing, Jas. B. Mitchell and M. R. Lovell. Capital stock $10,000. Its objects are holding and improving of real estate and dispensing charities to active members of the Company.

Chas. O. [illegible], an insolvent miner, has an application in insolvency to-day. He is in debt $15,000 with no assets to meet his obligations.

Bail of the Russ House Robbers.

Judge Dix has fixed the bail of John Mills and John O'Grady, who are charged with having robbed the Russ House safe, at $7,500 in each case.

Owing to the illness of Judge Pratt, the 12th District Court is not in session to-day, and the trial of Mecry's case is postponed until to-morrow.

Markets—Decline in Gold.

Overland telegrams [illegible] decline in gold: in New York on Saturday to 133⅝ under sales on Government account. The supply is said to be in excess of demand, hence the depression. Sterling exchange steady at 108¾ for best Bankers' bills. Legal tenders in our market have [illegible] traded in gold with liberal operations at 73½ and 74. National Bank notes are quoted at 71½ and 74.

Mining Stock Market.

Mining stocks, with the exception of Hall & Norcross, which [illegible] $25, are again better, with a strong speculative movement in Ophir, which, it is said, shows better developments. The advance in Crown Point $10; Confidence $20; Belcher $10; [illegible] $11; Savage $10; [illegible]; Imperial and Chollar Potosi, each $4; Ophir $136.

The Markets.

Petroleum is offered freely and the [illegible] 50 cases sold privately. Round lots can be bought for $1 12½ or less. 50 barrels sold on private terms; quotable at [illegible]. Pure spirits, in a lot of 10 pipes, sold at $2 05, 50 sold at $2 cash. For sugar there is a firm, steady [illegible] with sales of 400 half barrels at about the price ruling the past ten days. [illegible] advanced for China. Light supplies at the shipping ports, and [illegible] have improved the tone in the market, and there is more inquiry. We hear of sales of 150 bales [illegible] at 38c cash, and other transactions the particulars of which are withheld. Whisky—there is an improved demand for fine. The sales include 50 barrels and 75 half barrels [illegible]. Freights—American ship Fleet Wing, 827 tons, has been chartered for Boston at or about $14, [illegible]. Flour—there is little demand for the China trade, with some inquiry for the Hawaiian Islands. We quote superfine half sacks, per barrel, at $5 50@7 50; quarter sacks at $5 50@7 50; outside country brands sell at 25c per barrel off. Wheat—the market rules in favor of the buyer, and the demand is limited. Sales 1,000 sacks good [illegible] at $2 10; No. 2 ranges from $2 to $2 10 per 100 pounds. Barley [illegible] lots comprise 1500 sacks good feed and fair brewing at $1 per 100 pounds. Potatoes 95c@$1 05; choice Bodega, for the Haw. Islands at $1 10 per 100 pounds.

No arrivals. [illegible] down east of Salt Lake.

State Items.

The two soldiers arrested at the Dalles for stealing a clock, have been turned over to the civil authorities, and committed for trial.

Mr. C. B. Widmer of Lane county, has manufactured, this year, about two hundred and fifty gallons of peach brandy which, the Journal says, is of the best quality.

The Eugene Journal says the house of Mr. Duncan, living on "Camas Swale," was destroyed by fire, last Wednesday night. No furniture saved.

A late census of Eugene City shows the total population to be 721, the number of voters, 196, the number of children, between the ages of four and twenty, is 321; children under four years, 100, females over twenty years, 159.

The Walla Walla Statesman says that a letter has been received from the W. T. Delegate in Congress, stating that he will defeat the annexation of Walla Walla county to Oregon, if within his power.

Union Conventions are called in the counties of Douglas, Lane, Polk and Marion, on the 17th of March, the day recommended by the State Central Committee. In Douglas and Lane the Conventions meet only for the election of Delegates to the State Convention, and will reassemble afterward for the nomination of county tickets.

We are informed by a gentleman from the Dalles, that the loss of stock reported to have been so general east of the Cascades, did not affect the Klikitat district very disastrously. Out of several thousand head wintered there, not more than forty or fifty had been lost from the severity of the winter.

The Indians of Idaho.—We learn from Mr. William Gates, who is now in the city from Snake river, at the mouth of the Boise, where the new steamer of the O. S. N. Company is being constructed, that the Indians in the region of Owyhee have of late become very troublesome. The [illegible] of Owyhee, having determined to do [illegible] for their own protection, Government failing [illegible] to assist them, have offered bounties for scalps, and will make clean work of it. The organization has [illegible] for their own protection. [illegible] to "Old Kaleb of Kaleoiala," for arms and [illegible] but Kaleb said it was "hazardous," and [illegible] furnish the means for preventing the red devils from taking white scalps. He should learn that treating with the tribes in that vicinity before they are effectually [illegible] is worse than folly. There has never been anything done to bring the Indians to terms there since the [illegible] of 1860, when they were effectually routed by the [illegible] of Boise Basin and surrounding country. For two years or more the Indians were shy of the whites, after [illegible] them at that time. We are glad [illegible] the Owyhee organization is composed of men [illegible] in regard to these things, and [illegible] Idaho on the previous occasion. The report that the [illegible] had driven Mr. Gates and his men away from their work on the steamer is all incorrect. The Indians came very near them, but at no time were [illegible], and the boat will be in readiness [illegible]. The machinery will nearly all be in, and [illegible] ready to run, when she is launched.

The following information is furnished by the Radiator of the 27th January:

On the 12th of January, while two men were traveling from Fort Benton to Sun river they came upon a party of men encamped, a large number of whom were badly frozen. They also found the skeleton of a man in a cave, where he appeared to have crawled for shelter, either from the weather or from Indians. Near the same place they found the remains of six horses, which from their position appeared to have been shot and used as breastworks.

Hay is selling at Helena at $90 a ton, having risen to that figure from $50 since the late storm.

A Territorial Convention was called to assemble at Helena, on the 13th of March, for the purpose of considering the wants of the people and representing them to Congress, with a view of redress.

At Diamond City it snowed for two consecutive days, and all mining operations were partially suspended. Business was at a stand-still; all the loose men had gone to the Sun river excitement, which is generally believed to be a "hoax."

The same paper reports rich placer discoveries on Tucker's gulch, near Helena, from which specimens weighing from $21 to $120 had been shown.

Neglected Coughs and Colds.—Very few are aware of the importance of checking a Cough or "Common Cold" in its first stage. That which in the beginning would yield to a mild remedy, if neglected, soon preys upon the lungs. "Brown's Bronchial Troches," or Cough Lozenges, afford instant relief.

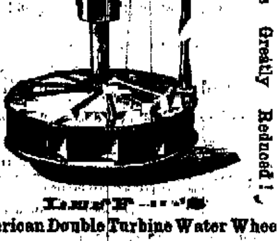
WATER WHEELS.

POWER PLEDGED EQUAL TO THE

Best Overshot Wheel in Existence.



Prices Greatly Reduced!

Prices Greatly Reduced!

LEFFEL'S

American Double Turbine Water Wheel

Is now manufactured by the Oregon Iron Works, in the city of Portland, and orders for the same can be filled immediately. We have a small supply of the different sizes, from 10 inches to 48 inches in diameter. That we may know the proper sized wheel you require, measure your water in the following way: Take the width of the stream, the average depth, and the distance it flows in a minute.

All the wheels now in use give universal satisfaction. Both the construction of the wheel and its performance commend it to the better judgment of all minds capable of appreciating the highest development of mechanical construction. Therefore it has conquered the most violent opposition.

This wheel is especially adapted to mining purposes. It is light, and can be easily packed into the mountains. Wheels weighing from 100 to 300 pounds will yield from 10 to 40 horse power, under a head of 25 or 60 feet. They are the cheapest wheel to set up known, as they are so arranged as to produce the greatest power possible from the water used.

The prices of these wheels have now been reduced to the ability of all. Come and see them or send for a circular to

Persons of sedentary habits troubled with weakness, lassitude, palpitation of the heart, lack of appetite, distress after eating, torpid liver, constipation, &c., deserve to suffer if they will not try the celebrated

PLANTATION BITTERS,

Which are now recommended by the highest medical authorities, and warranted to produce an immediate beneficial effect. They are exceedingly agreeable, perfectly pure, and must supersede all other tonics where a healthy, gentle stimulant is required.

They purify, strengthen and invigorate.

They create a healthy appetite.

They are an antidote to change of water and diet.

They overcome effects of dissipation and late hours.

They strengthen the system and enliven the mind.

They prevent miasmatic and intermittent fevers.

They purify the breath and acidity of the stomach.

They cure Dyspepsia and Constipation.

They cure Diarrhea and Cholera Morbus.

They cure Liver Complaint and Nervous Headache.

They make the weak strong, the languid brilliant, and are exhausted nature's great restorer. They are composed of the celebrated Calisaya bark, wintergreen, sassafras, roots and herbs, all preserved in perfectly pure St. Croix rum. For particulars, see circulars and testimonials around each bottle.

Beware of impostors. Examine every bottle. See that it has our private U. S. Stamp unmutilated over the cork, with plantation scene, and our signature on a fine steel plate side label. See that our bottle is not refilled with spurious and deleterious stuff. Any person pretending to sell Plantation Bitters by the gallon or in bulk, is an impostor. Any person imitating this bottle, or selling any other material therein, whether called Plantation Bitters or not, is a criminal under the U. S. Law, and will be so prosecuted by us. We already have our eye on several parties re-filling our bottles, &c., who will succeed in getting themselves into close quarters. The demand for Drake's Plantation Bitters from ladies, clergymen, merchants, &c., is incredible. The simple trial of a bottle is the evidence we present of their worth and superiority. They are sold by all respectable druggists, grocers, physicians, hotels, saloons, steamboats and country stores.

Castles in the Air.

BY WILLIAM CULLEN BRYANT

"But there is yet a region of the clouds
Unseen from the low earth. Beyond the veil
Of these dark volumes rolling through the sky
Its mountain summits glisten in the sun—
The realm of Castles in the Air. The foot
Of man hath never trod those shining steeps,
But there his spirit, leaving the dull load
Of bodily organs, wanders with delight,
And builds his structures of the shining mist,
Glorious beyond the dreams of architects.
And I [illegible] with her and I beheld
Than ever walked the earth [illegible] said my guide
And led me wandering to a lofty height
That overlooked a fair broad vale shut in
By the great hills [illegible] Now behold
The Castle-builders. Then I looked, and lo!
The vale was filled with shadowy forms, that bore
Each a white wand, with which they touched the banks
Of mist beside them, and at once arose,
Obedient to their wish, the walls and domes
Of stately palaces, Gothic or Greek
Or such as in the land of Mohammed
Uplift the crescent, or in forms more strange,
Border the ancient Indus, or behold
Their gilded friezes mirrored in the lakes
Of China—yet of ampler majesty
And gorgeously adorned. Tall porticoes
Sprang from the ground, the eye pursued afar
Their colonnades, that lessened to a point
In the faint distance. Portals that swung back
On musical hinges showed the eye within
Vast halls with golden floors and bright alcoves,
And walls of pearl, and sapphire vault besprent
With silver stars. Within the spacious rooms
Were banquets spread; and maidens, like
As wood-nymphs or as stripling Mercury, enter now
Ran to and fro and laid the chalice [illegible]
And brought the [illegible] with [illegible] work.
The happy architect and [illegible]
From room to room, and [illegible] chill north wind
[illegible] and the massive walls
Not long his glory [illegible] dome roll away
[illegible] through the [illegible] and turret lean
Are folded up [illegible] prepared for flight, and stream
In mist-wreaths through the empty air.
Forward, the unfinished builder, [illegible]
In trains of drifting rack. A brief despair
[illegible] but the wand is in his hand,
[illegible] turns him to his task again
[illegible] said the fair being at my side,
[illegible] one has made himself a diadem
Of the bright skirts of a cloud that lay
[illegible] in the golden sunshine, and has bound
The bauble on his forehead. See again,
How from these vapors he calls up a host
With arms and banners! A great multitude
Gather and bow before him with bare heads.
To the four winds his messengers go forth,
And bring him back earth's homage. From the ground
Another calls a winged image, such
As poets give to Fame, who, to her mouth
Putting a silver trumpet, blows abroad
A loud, harmonious summons to the world,
And all the listening nations shout his name.
Another yet, apart from all the rest,
Casting a fearful glance from side to side,
[illegible] the ground by stealth. Beneath his wand
A glittering pile grows up, ingots and bars
Of massive gold, and coins on which earth's kings
Have stamped their symbols." As these words were said,
The north wind blew again across the vale,
And all the [illegible] crowns flew off in mist;
The host of armed men became a scud
Torn by the angry blast; the form of Fame
[illegible] its long arms in air, and rode the wind
A jagged cloud; the glittering pile of gold
Grew pale and flowed in gray reek away.
Then there were sobs and tears from those whose work
The wind had scattered. some had flung themselves
Upon the ground in grief, and some stood fixed
In blank bewilderment, and some looked on [illegible] as at a pageant of the stage
[illegible] hidden by the curtain's fall.
"Take thou this wand," my bright companion said.
I took it from her hand, and with it touched
The knolls of snow-white mist, and they grew green
With soft, thick herbage. At another touch
A brook leaped forth, and dashed and sparkled by;
And shady walks, through shrubberies cool and close
Wandered, and there, upon the open grounds,
The peaceful sunshine lay, a vineyard nursed
Its pouting clusters; and from boughs that drooped
[illegible] their load [illegible] shed its fruit;
And [illegible] set with many a pl[illegible] herb
And many a glorious flower made sweet the air.

I [illegible] and I exulted; yet I longed
For Nature's grander aspects, and I plied
The [illegible] rod again; and then arose
Woods tall and wide, of odorous pine and fir,
And every noble tree that casts the leaf
In Autumn. Paths that wound between the stems
Led through the solid [illegible] to twilight glens,
To thundering torrents and white waterfalls,
And sides of lonely lakes, and [illegible] between [illegible] cliffs. Above the trees were seen
Gray [illegible] and walls of splintered rock.
But near the forest [illegible], in the vale,
[illegible] a dwelling half [illegible] by trees,
Where, through the open [illegible] shelves were seen
Filled with old volumes, and a glimpse was given
Of canvas, here and there along the walls,
On which the hands of mighty men of art
Had [illegible] their [illegible]. On the portico
Old [illegible], with mighty faces and frank eyes,
Talked with each other: some had passed from life
Long since, yet dearly were remembered still.
My heart yearned toward them, and the quick, warm tears
Stood in my eyes. Forward I sprang to grasp
The [illegible] that once so kindly met my own—
I [illegible] but met them not: the wind [illegible]
Was there before me. Dwelling, field and brook,
Dark wood and flowery garden, and blue lake,
And beetling cliff and noble human forms,
All, all had melted into that pale sea
Of billowy vapor rolling round my feet.

Southern Pictures of the War.

REMINISCENCES OF STUART'S CHIEF OF STAFF.

Colonel Von Brooke, Stuart's Chief of Staff, continues, in Blackwood's Magazine, his sketches of experience in the Southern army, portions of which we have republished from time to time. Our last extracts detailed the manner in which General Pope's headquarters were captured in August, 1862, near Catlett's Station, he himself barely escaping. During the first day's fighting of the second battle of Bull Run, which soon followed, the Southerners made large captures of army [illegible] from us. Colonel Von Brooke thus [illegible] to the DIVISION OF THE BOOTY.

The quantity of booty was very great, and the [illegible] of luxuries absolutely incredible. It was exceedingly amusing to see here a ragged fellow [illegible] himself with a box of pickled oysters or potted lobster; there another cutting into a cheese of [illegible] size, or emptying a bottle of champagne; while hundreds were engaged in opening [illegible] of boots and shoes and other clothing, and fitting themselves with articles of apparel to replace their own tattered garments. The liquors, with a [illegible] degree of precaution, were at once [illegible] by the quartermaster and placed under a strong guard, to avert the consequences of immoderate indulgence. There was a good deal of jealousy between Jackson's artillery and our own with regard to the disposition that was to be made of the captured horses.

Among other prizes of this description we had taken a Federal sutler's wagon [illegible] of those large gaudily painted vans drawn always by four excellent horses; and General Stuart desired me to trot rapidly over with the wagon to our horse artillery, assign the horses to the near [illegible] battery, and dispose of the contents as I thought proper. It gave me great pleasure, after I [illegible] the four stately bays into stout artillery horses, to divide the plunder among our brave [illegible], who soon collected around the wagon in large numbers, and received the contents with loud demonstrations of delight. The [illegible] boxes were speedily [illegible], and were found to contain shirts, hats, pocket-handkerchiefs, oranges, lemons, [illegible], cigars, and all sorts of knick-knacks. I [illegible] myself only to two boxes of regalias, which I managed to tie securely to the pommel of my saddle. We were occupied throughout the day in collecting as much of the booty as we could carry off with us, and preparing the rest for destruction.

AN INTERVIEW WITH JACKSON.

Afterward a Brigadier of our troops managed to get in the rebel rear, near to where Stuart was posted with his cavalry, who discovering the imminence of the danger, forthwith dispatched Von Brooke to report it to General Jackson. We extract:

After a rapid gallop of a few minutes, I met two brigades of A. P. Hill's division, which I ordered to proceed at a double quick to the point of danger. Very soon I encountered General Hill himself, to whom I made the necessary explanations, and who at once proceeded in person to the threatened position. Meanwhile, the cannonade had become fearful, more and more batteries had joined in the action, and, from a hundred pieces of artillery, the thunder of the battle roared along our lines. In the dense smoke that enveloped the field, and amid the bursting of innumerable shells, it was not easy to find Gen. Jackson, whom I discovered at last sitting comfortably on a caisson, quietly writing his dispatches. After I had made my report, I remarked to the General that it had been very difficult to find him, and that this was rather a hot place for him to be in. "My dear Major," he replied, "I am very much obliged to you for the orders you have given. Hill will take care of the enemy in our rear. I know what they are; there cannot be more than two brigades of them. As for my position here, I believe we have been together in hotter places before." The great hero then calmly resumed his writing, cannon shot ploughing up the ground all around him and covering his MS. with dust, so that, like one of Napoleon's generals under similar circumstances, he was in no need of sand to dry up his ink.

In the mean time the trains had been saved, and the bold Yankees that had attacked our rear, had been driven back with fearful loss.

FIRING ON OUR WOUNDED.

Many of the enemy's wounded having fallen into our hands, we had erected a temporary hospital in the shady grove, near a cool, clear spring, where several hundred of them had been received. It may have been that the enemy by accident fired too high, or they may have mistaken this group of men for a body of our troops, but suddenly a heavy fire was concentrated upon this point, and it was indeed a sickening sight to see shot after shot strike among them, shell after shell explode over this dense mass of sufferers, who, with [illegible] shattered or lacerated by ghastly wounds, [illegible] their own [illegible] to crawl out of the way, cursing friends for the agonies they had to endure.

SHARP SHOOTING.

The next day, August 30, the second battle was fought. The following [illegible] other incidents, are related of it by the [illegible]:

On our right was a [illegible] of Federal cavalry operating with great [illegible] Johnson's precursor). At my request, Colonel Hood [illegible] of his Texas marksmen detailed to me, [illegible] with alacrity and pleasure to who moved [illegible] enterprise crawling through this exciting [illegible] and along the fences with the support [illegible] the higher points, in a manner that might have [illegible] the envy of the cleverest Indian on the [illegible]. Among my riflemen one had been [illegible] out to me as the best shot, who, was a Prussian by birth, but who had lived for many years on the prairies of Texas. He was the first to fire. Raising his rifle, he said to me with a certain pride, a smile lighting up his brown weather beaten features, "Now, Major, you shall see what an old Prussian can do." An instant afterward the crack of the rifle was heard, and the foremost of the Federals rolled in the dust, then a second victim fell pierced by the bullet of another Texan, and the bold body of Federal cavalry galloped off, amid the tumultuous shouts of Hood's men, and of our own cavalry and cannoneers, who had been looking on with great interest. Unfortunately we could not lay hold of the riderless horses which rapidly followed their vanishing companions, but nothing could prevent my Texans from getting their spoils from the dead—a booty, in their opinion, richly merited by them.

RELATIVE LOSSES.

No official report of our losses at the second Bull Run battle have ever been given to the public. After describing the second day's conflict, which ended disastrously to us, Von Brooke thus sums up the losses:

It was exceedingly unfortunate for the Confederates that the battle had been commenced so late in the afternoon, as two hours more of daylight would have rendered the result of the day yet more disastrous to the Federal army. Their loss, however, during the several days' fighting, which terminated with the battle of Groveton, had been immense, amounting to at least 20,000 men in killed, wounded and prisoners, 30 pieces of artillery, about 40,000 of small arms, many standards, and uncounted stores of ammunition and provisions. The Yankee troops were totally demoralized, and had lost all confidence in their commanding General, and the Government at Washington, not less than the people of the whole North, looked with the greatest horror and anxiety into the future. Our loss had also been heavy—estimated in the last battle at 6,000 killed and wounded.

Many a noble fellow breathed his last sigh for the South on the slippery heights of Groveton. The little military family of our own staff had specially to grieve for the loss of one of our number—Captain Hardeman Stuart, nephew of our general, who had charge of the signal corps of our cavalry. Poor Stuart, having been surprised with his party on the morning of the 30th by a party of Federal horse, was only able to escape with two of his men, leaving their apparatus and horses behind. Reaching the Confederate lines on foot, just as the battle was commencing, and not being able to render more important service, these three heroes seized each one of the muskets which had been thrown down in large numbers by the enemy in their retreat, and joined the ranks of the Eighteenth Mississippi infantry, which were just moving at a double quick toward the Groveton Heights. There they fell in glorious companionship, after the regiment had captured several of the enemy's batteries.

We fell asleep on the field of battle, and were occupied during the great part of the night in carrying water to the wounded and otherwise ministering to the wants of the sufferers to the extent of our ability.

MEETING OLD ACQUAINTANCES.

Upon the day following, General Fitz Lee, who commanded a brigade of cavalry, contrived to make prisoners of a good portion of the 2d United States cavalry. We again quote:

Fitz Lee had been a lieutenant in the 2d United States cavalry before the war, and he was greatly delighted at making prisoners in this way of many of his old comrades. The officers gave their parole not to escape, and were treated by us with the utmost courtesy, being allowed to ride their own horses, and accompany our staff at the head of the column. They had served in former days both with Fitz Lee and Stuart; and it was curious, as an illustration of the war, to hear these quondam companions-in-arms talking and laughing over the olden time.

THE KILLING OF GENERAL KEARNEY.

I well remember the lion hearted Kearney, of New Jersey, was killed a few nights subsequently, when making a reconnoisance at the head of his troops. Von Brooke thus alludes to the affair:

I met Jackson and Stuart, who had been summoned to the front by the firing and the halting of the column. Old Stonewall made his dispositions with his usual celerity. He ordered Stuart to move along the byroads towards Fairfax Court House, and ascertain whether the Federals were only making a demonstration, or if this was a general advance. For himself, he was determined to stop the further advance of the Yankees at once; and before we had turned off into the dark, narrow path through the woods, the leading division of his corps had formed line of battle, and, advancing at double quick, was soon hotly engaged with the enemy.

Jackson's fight became a sanguinary one, but the Federals were driven back with heavy loss, leaving behind them their dead and wounded, and one thousand of their number as prisoners in our hands. Among their dead were two generals, one of whom, the famous warrior Phil Kearney, had years before left an arm on one of the battlefields of Mexico. His body was respectfully taken care of, and sent with all military honors into the Federal lines under flag of truce the next day.

A FEMALE STAFF OFFICER.

General Stuart established his headquarters at the house of a citizen whose daughter he had previously known, and regarded as a young lady of very ardent patriotism. Her subsequent conduct did not justify this opinion. In a playful, imprudent manner, the General had bestowed upon her a sort of honorary commission upon his staff, which caused her to be arrested at a somewhat later period by the Federal authorities, but long before the termination of the war she managed to marry a Yankee officer, and took the oath of allegiance to the Northern Government, thus doubly discrediting the title of Virginian.

ANOTHER GLIMPSE OF "STONEWALL."

After half an hour's rest, Stuart requested me to ride with him to the headquarters of General Jackson, who had bivouacked only a few miles from the Court House. A rapid gallop soon accomplished the distance, and we arrived just in time to partake of his simple supper, consisting of coffee and corn bread. At the conclusion of repast, the night being already far advanced, we accepted General Jackson's invitation to sleep for the few hours till dawn beneath his small tent fly. Wearied out by the exertions of the previous day, I was still deeply wrapped in slumber when I felt the pressure of a slight touch on my shoulder, and a mild voice said to me, "Major, it is time to rise and start." Before I was yet fully awake, my caller placed a basin of water and a towel on a camp-stool near my head, and continued, "Now, Major, wash quickly; a cup of coffee is waiting for you, your horse is saddled, and you must be off at once." To my utter surprise, I now discovered that my attentive servitor was the great Stonewall himself—the light touch had been given by the iron hand, and the soft voice was that which had been heard in the short energetic sentences so often amid the tumult of battle. I shall never forget the smile that broke over his kindly face at my amazement in recognizing him.

A RIDE THROUGH THE COUNTRY.

The part of Virginia through which we were passing abounds with delicious peaches, and as this fruit was just ripening it was a very grateful attention in the proprietors of the different farms and orchards on the roads to invite us to partake of it freely. At one point of our day's march there came out to the highway, from a neighboring mansion, which was decorated with the Confederate flag, a little cavalcade, consisting of an old gentleman with gray hair, and three very pretty daughters. Galloping up to the column the old gentleman addressed himself accidentally to Stuart, begging that he would be good enough to point out the famous cavalry leader whom he and his fair daughters were so anxious to see. Stuart, after having maintained for a time his incognito, at last acknowledged that he was himself the man, and the surprise of the pater familias, and the blushing confusion of the young ladies amused us not a little. They all insisted upon our stopping for a short time at their house, where luncheon had been prepared for the General and staff and I must admit that, in my breakfastless condition, I awaited Stuart's consent, which was only hesitatingly given, with some impatience.

Soon after this we witnessed a most touching scene. At the portico of a modest, cheerful dwelling by the roadside, there stood, as we rode along, an elderly lady in deep mourning, who held by the hand a fair haired boy of about fifteen years of age and she asked of the General that she might be permitted to bless our battle flag. Having invoked the favor of Heaven upon our colors in a manner as earnest as it was unaffected, she told us that she was a widow, who had lost already two sons in the war but that she was ready to sacrifice her last child for the sacred cause of her country. The eyes of the boy brightened up and his fists were clenched at this, and tears fell down on our beards as we turned the heads of our horses toward the passing column.

During the afternoon we rode over the ground, in the immediate neighborhood of Drainsville, where Stuart, in the year 1861, had fought his first fight. He showed me with pleasure the different positions which he and the enemy had occupied, and explained how differently he would have acted at that time had he been favored with the benefit of his present experience.

We camped in and around Drainsville, our headquarters being established in the apple garden of a hotel in the centre of the village. Here for the first time since we had left Hanover Court House, were we enabled to reinforce our very dilapidated wardrobe from our long missed portmanteaus, which we found in the wagons belonging to the cavalry staff. The following day was one of strange blessed, uninterrupted quietude at Drainsville, the first day of rest after three weeks of continuous hard fighting.

I have no power to convey the feeling of enjoyment with which after a refreshing bath and the investment of the outer man in clean clothing from head to foot, I lay stretched upon my blanket beneath a shade of a wide spreading hickory tree. The day was delicious. The breeze came to me burdened with the fragrance of the last summer flowers, lifting gently my hair and whispering to me from the swaying branches overhead. Even the horses seemed to join in the lassitude of the camp. They lay around us in the deep rich grass, which they were too lazy to crop, the very types of perfect physical satisfaction. And so we rested at headquarters—the officers, the soldiers, the negroes, the horses, the mules, all wrapped in the dolce far niente which marked the termination of our eventful summer campaign in Virginia.

ROBERT HALL.—We shall, perhaps, surprise our readers when we avow our belief that the lord of modern conversation, most nearly approaching to Johnson, but in many things far surpassing him in conversational powers, was Robert Hall. He had that rapid nimbleness of fancy and imagination, seconded by a vehement rapidity of language. His estimate of a very popular author was good, if not just. "Sir, he has set out on a race after obscurity, and sir, he has overtaken it." Again, on a pleasant ride with a friend, as the great preacher's eye glanced over the sun setting beneath the waves, he exclaimed: "Only look, sir, at that mild, silvery light on that expanse of waters! Why, sir, it looks as if they were preparing for a magnificent public baptism, and the whole of the hundred and forty and four thousand described in the Revelations were about to descend into the waves."

We believe Robert Hall was the finest of all our table talkers. He was in conversation what he was as a preacher: rapidity, imagination, wit and force—he possessed these in a large degree. Somebody said, "No doubt, in a future state, the powers of the human mind would be enlarged to an indefinite degree." "What's that, sir? What's that?" The question was repeated. "Why the mind more than the body, sir? Will the body undergo this frightful increase? Then we shave a man whose nose would perforate the sun, his chin stretch across the Atlantic, and battles fought in the wrinkles of his face, none but a fool could believe in that, sir?"

His genius for happy retort never slumbered. A timid man was the subject of conversation, when he remarked: "Mr —— is so nervously modest, he seems always to be begging pardon of all flesh for being in the world." Foster's distinction between Hall and Coleridge was very good. Hall used language as an emperor. He said to his words go and come, imperially, and they obeyed his bidding. Coleridge used his words as a necromancer, so weird and unearthly were their embodiments and subjects.

Robert Hall never had an audience in the midst of which he could not shine. How would his sudden and brilliant corruscations have astonished the brilliant companies of Holland House! Can we doubt for a moment that he had a genius for conversation inferior to none of the distinguished people who thronged there? He not only had a genius inferior to none, but he had faculties which would have placed him in a rank superior to all. He would never have condescended to the mere fun and frivolity of Sidney Smith; but he had a wit quite as brilliant, a point and force as pertinent and strong, while the range of his thoughts and fervor of his imagination would have suggested topics of an incomparably higher character than those which relieve the monotony of the dinner table. It is very true that Christian ministers of Robert Hall's creed and complexion cannot join, or cannot feel at home, amidst the coteries of Holland House; and perhaps it must be admitted that his dignity was not of that cold, well bred order which always puts the curb upon expression. His words, like the hoofs of prancing and curveting steeds, struck sparks as he passed; and the sentences created the shock, not only of surprise, but of fear, and gave not only the fire and light of speech, but if often, only the pleasantry, frequently the awe and wonder, too.—Eclectic Review.

WILCOX & GIBBS SEWING MACHINE.

We would call attention to the following facts in connection with this Machine, which renders it superior to any other in use:

It forms a flat elastic seam which will not rip in wear,
It is entirely noiseless;
A patented device prevents its being turned backward;
The needle cannot be set wrong;
Can be used successfully without other instructions than accompany the Machine;
It received the Gold Medal of the American Institute in 1862. For particulars, enquire of

ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM!

The Remedy for Curing

CONSUMPTION, COUGHS, COLDS, Asthma, Croup,

Diseases of the Throat, Bronchitis, Pains and Oppression of the Chest and Lungs, Difficult Breathing and all the Diseases of the Pulmonary Organs.

ITS ACTION IS EXPECTORANT, ALTERATIVE, SUDORIFIC SEDATIVE, DIAPHORETIC AND DIURETIC which renders it one of the most valuable remedies known for curing disease of the lungs. It excites expectoration, and causes the lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucus; CHANGES THE SECRETIONS AND PURIFIES THE BLOOD; heals the irritated parts; gives strength to the digestive organs; brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. Such is the immediate and satisfactory effect, that it is WARRANTED TO BREAK UP THE MOST DISTRESSING COUGH IN A FEW HOURS' TIME, if not of too long standing. IT IS WARRANTED to give entire satisfaction even in the MOST CONFIRMED CASES OF CONSUMPTION! IT IS WARRANTED NOT to produce costiveness (which is the case with most remedies) or affect the head, as it contains no Opium in any form. IT IS WARRANTED TO BE PERFECTLY HARMLESS to the most delicate child, although it is an active and powerful remedy for restoring the system. THERE IS NO REAL NECESSITY FOR SO MANY DEATHS BY CONSUMPTION, when ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM will prevent it if only taken in time.

THE STANDARD AMERICAN BILLIARD TABLES!

AND COMBINATION CUSHIONS.

MESSRS. PHELAN & COLLENDER

WOULD RESPECTFULLY CALL THE ATTENTION of persons wanting Billiard Tables to the great superiority of the above tables, manufactured exclusively at their establishment.

At the Billiard Congress of 1860, composed of all the first-class players of America, it was unanimously resolved that tables of our manufacture should be used at all matches for the Championship, as the best and only reliable tables.

These Billiard Tables have received the unqualified approval of the best players and most competent judges, who have universally pronounced them unequaled for general excellence and durability.

Seven distinct patents for improvements in Billiard Tables have been granted to us by the United States Patent Office, and we have lately obtained a Patent from the French Government, for our improvement in Billiard Cushions.

We employ, in the construction of our tables, a variety of machinery specially made for the purpose, by means of which we are enabled to insure a scientific and mechanical accuracy hitherto unknown in Billiard manufacture.

Having a long experience and thorough knowledge of all the appliances of Billiards, and constantly on hand a large stock of the best and most thoroughly [illegible] materials, we are prepared to furnish everything required in the Billiard line with unprecedented dispatch.

The eminent French Billiard Player, M. Berger, has published the following opinion:

"NEW YORK 2d August, 1861.

"On the eve of leaving the United States, I am happy to declare to all amateurs of Billiards that, after a tour of eleven months through the principal cities, I have been enabled to judge [illegible] of the superiority of the Billiard Tables manufactured by Phelan & Collender. The system of manufacturing is so superior, that I am longing to introduce their style of cushion into France. They have united to their manufacture of American Billiard Tables that of the French Tables, of remarkable excellence and beauty. For these reasons, I am happy to make this declaration.

"BERGER, CLAUDIUS,
Prof. of Billiards, Paris."

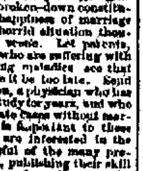
NEW REMEDIES, NEW REMEDIES

Dr. Gibbon's Dispensary,



617 KEARNEY STREET, NEAR COMMERCIAL, San Francisco. Established in 1854, for the treatment of Sexual and Seminal Diseases, such as Gonorrhoea, Gleet, Stricture, Syphilis in all its forms, Seminal Weakness, Impotency, etc. Skin Diseases (of years standing) and Ulcerated Legs [illegible].

Horrible Diseases.

How many thousands of persons, both male and female, are there who are suffering out a miserable existence from the effects of secret indulgences, or from virus absorbed into the system! Look at their pallid, wasted and disfigured faces and their broken-down constitutions, disqualifying them for the happiness of marriage or the enjoyment of life. In this horrid situation thousands suffer until death closes the scene. Let parents, guardians, friends, attend to those who are suffering with any of these horrible life-destroying maladies ere that they are cared for and cured before it be too late. Send them immediately to Doctor Gibbon, a physician who has made private diseases his special study for years, and who is certain to cure the most inveterate cases without mercury or any injurious drugs. It is important to those who are affected, or to those who are interested in the welfare of their friends, to be careful of the many pretended doctors who infest all cities, publishing their skill in curing all diseases in a few days, imposing upon the public by using the names of eminent physicians from Europe and other places. Be therefore careful and make strict inquiry, or you may fall into the hands of these charlatans.

Seminal Weakness.

Seminal Emissions, the consequence of self abuse. This solitary vice, or depraved sexual indulgence, is practiced by the youth of both sexes to an almost unlimited extent, producing, with unerring certainty, the following train of morbid symptoms, unless combated by scientific medical measures, viz: Sallow countenance, dark spots under the eyes, pain in the head, ringing in the ears, noise like the rustling of leaves and rattling of chariots, uneasiness about the loins, weakness of the limbs, confused vision, blunted intellect, loss of confidence, diffidence in approaching strangers, a dislike to form new acquaintances, a disposition to shun society, loss of memory, hectic flushes, pimples and various eruptions about the face, furred tongue, fetid breath, coughs, [illegible], night sweats, monomania and frequent insanity. If relief be not obtained, should apply immediately, either in person or by letter, and have a cure effected by his new and scientific mode of treating this disease, which never fails of effecting a quick and radical cure. Dr. G. will give One Hundred Dollars to any person who will prove satisfactorily to him that he was cured of this complaint by either of the San Francisco quacks.

DOCTOR GIBBON is responsible, and will give to each patient a written instrument, if [illegible] fit to effect a radical and permanent cure, or make no charge.

Persons at a distance may be CURED AT HOME, by addressing a letter to Doctor Gibbon, stating case, symptoms, length of time the disease has continued, and have medicines promptly forwarded, free from damage and curiosity, to any part of the country, with full and plain directions for use, for Ten Dollars, sent in registered letter or through Wells, Fargo & Co.

Address DR. J. F. GIBBON, 617 Kearney street, near Commercial, San Francisco. Post Office Box 252.
